

TUSD EXCEPTIONAL PARENT PROJECT

The National Alliance on Mental Illness (NAMI) Southern Arizona Parents and Teachers as Allies presentation

NAMI Southern Arizona provides support, education and advocacy to persons living with mental illness and to their loved ones. All NAMI's services are free of charge.

Parents and Teachers as Allies will discuss 7 mental illnesses seen in children and adolescents and also give the “lived” experiences of what it is like to have mental illness in the family. NAMI’s publication depicting in detail the discussed mental illnesses is given to audience members along with tips for the classroom and behavioral resources in the community.

The Exceptional Parent Project is an ongoing collaboration among TUSD families, staff, and the community to improve education for all who are involved in the learning process. We will proactively seek to open and sustain the lines of communication and make the success of each student our mutual goal.
